

This design

features a horizontally elongated black diamond with with italic lettering spelling 'Iti'. I came up with the diamond idea when I was making a flow chart of the top-level AMT process; it seemed to me that the elongated diamond was a nice abstract representation of the transformation of a source language text to Interlingua to target language text. Each end of the elongated diamond comes to point, representing particular texts from particular languages, and the wide middle part of the diamond represents the broad and universal semantics of the interlingua.
